

Karma Chameleon

Fun Facts:

-  They have two feet that are shaped like salad tongs the foot consists of two fleshy pads that oppose each other. One pad contains three digits that are fused together while the other has two fused digits.
-  They change colour mainly to communicate or regulate their body's temperature.
-  When a chameleon changes its skin color, the animal usually isn't trying to camouflage itself by blending into the environment. More often, this remarkable ability is used as a way of controlling its body temperature.
-  Their eyes can swivel round simultaneously in two different directions - so while one eye is looking upwards and to the left, the other might simultaneously wander downwards and to the right.
-  After a chameleon gets both eyes locked onto its prey, a high-speed weapon is deployed: the reptile's ultra-sticky tongue, which can be 2.5 times as long as its body and can be deployed and reeled back in less than a second. This ultra-sticky substance coats the tongue, giving the lizards an edge that helps them pull even heavy victims into their jaws.
-  Sadly, if a Chameleon loses its tail it won't grow back and it can help support the animal's entire bodyweight, allowing a chameleon to move between branches more easily. So, it would struggle a little if it lost it!

Let's see how we can create our masterpiece in art this week... A Chameleon!
